FAIL TO MAKE OUT A CASE

ADVOCATES OF MILLER BILL MAKE POOR

SHOWING AT OTTAWA.

Rev. Mr. Shearer, Chief Agitator of Anti-Racing

Propaganda, Destroys His Own Case at Final

Session of Investigating Committee.

Ottawa, Ont., February 18.—The taking of evidence by the Commons committee on the Miller anti-bookmaking bill closed today and next week arguments will be made by the opposing counsel. It is the general opinion about the House of Commons that the promoters of the bill have failed to make out a case. Rev. Mr. Shearer of Toronto was shown by his admissions on the witness stand last night to be the chief agitator of the anti-racing propaganda, but he refused to state who paid the expenses. He said he never saw races except one day on the ice here two weeks ago, that neither he nor any of his associates had any knowledge of racing conditions in Canada, nor had they made any investigation or inquiry. No case of evil results from race course betting had ever come under his observation. He admitted preparing and circulating petitions, and then unloading them on members of Parliament in batches whenever he thought it would be effective.

Mr. Monk, M. P., one of the committee, remarked that it was singular that Dr. Shearer had copied New York State legislation in his bill rather than the English act governing betting. It was not the practice here to model after United States legislation.

Dr. Shearer's own testimony is considered to have destroyed his case so far as race course betting is concerned, but there will undoubtedly be legislation against handbooks, advertising touts and unduly long meetings.

Dr. Routledge, formerly a member of Parliament for East Middlesex, and Judge Francis Nelson of Toronto, were the witnesses today. Dr. Routledge is president of the London Turf Club and an extensive dealer and breeder as well as a practicing physician. He said racing was necessary for the standard bred and the revenue from betting with the attendance that would not be there without the liberty to bet, was necessary to the holding of such meetings. Judge Nelson set forth the different methods of betting and favored the mutual machine as against the bookmaking system on economic and moral grounds. Public opinion, wherever there was organized racing in Canada, supported it. No country in the world prohibited betting on race courses. Some states did it but not the United States government.

IN WINTER QUARTERS AT BENNING.

New York, February 18.—The horses of the Prospect Stable, the name under which G. A. Bronner races, are wintering at Benning under the eye of Robert Boyle. The Prospect Stable is made up of Waterway, Dacia and Smoker. In addition to these three horses, Boyle has old Thistledeale under his care. He bought the giant Knight of the Thistle gelding last fall when James W. Colt sold out, and he is well pleased with his purchase. Thistledeale never looked better than he is looking this winter, and Boyle is confident that the old horse will come back next season as good as ever. Harvey Boyle, a Canadian steeplechase rider of considerable skill, will pilot the Bronner horses the coming season.

The cross-country colony at Benning is not as big this winter as it has been in other years. There are only about thirty horses at the old Washington track, but the thoroughbred colony will be augmented shortly by William Garth's string. Mr. Garth has hired the old Madden stable, which sheltered Sir Martin, Fayette, Edward, Connaught, Ranger and King James two years ago. Madden's horses are in Kentucky this winter.

Frank Purcell is at Benning with five or six horses belonging to Dr. J. S. Tyree. Jerry Murphy has a string of five horses, and Samuel Rose has six or seven. The star of Murphy's string is the four-year-old old Ormus filly, Bello, winner of the Harbor Hill Steeplechase at Belmont Park last fall. Joseph E. Widener talked of buying Bello to race in France this year, but he did not purchase the filly. Bello is developing into a handsome four-year-old.

TURRET WINS THE DERBY TRIAL.

San Francisco, Cal., February 18.—Turret, a highly-regarded son of Cunard, proved much the best in the Derby Trial at Oakland today. Some of the leading candidates for next Tuesday's event met at seven furlongs and Turret ruled favorite. Taplin did not make his move with the Cunard gelding until shortly before the stretch was reached. He then ran past the leaders, to win from Chester Krum and Balronia. Virgie Casse was well supported, but failed to show much.

Taplin was again in the limelight, riding three winners in a row.

Starter Dwyer was taken ill at the track and Jake Hoffmann, who was riding Cloudy, was called upon to start the race. The track was somewhat slow owing to rain which fell in the early morning hours. Favorites and well-backed horses were successful, one of the exceptions being in the first, which El Molino took at lucrative odds.

Kederis, on Glennadeane, cut across Bryce and shilling made a claim of foul, but it was not allowed, as Bryce was a badly beaten horse at the time. The judges fined Kederis $50.

Phil Mohr graduated from the maiden class by closing with a rush and beating Descendant in the last jump of the final race.

COLONEL NEVILLE PASSES AWAY.

New York, February 18.—Col. Robert Neville, of Uperville, Fauquier County, Va., died at his home today after a long illness. Colonel Neville was owner of the imported stallions, Contract and Ardington, and bred several famous jumpers. Among the good ones he sent to the races were Mr. McCann, White Garters, Diversion, Sir Wooster and the flat racer, Welbourne. A native of Ireland, he came to Virginia in the early seventies. He married Miss Mary Dulaney, eldest daughter of Colonel Dulaney, and was a member of the Metropolitan Club, Washington; National Steeplechase and Hunt Association; Maryland Club of Baltimore; Chevy Chase Club, and the Washington Jockey Club.

NO LEGISLATION IN KENTUCKY.

Frankfort, Ky., February 18.—No legislation concerning racing or race tracks will be taken up at this session of the legislature. This was made certain yesterday by the report of the religious and morals committee of the Senate, which reported that the bill of Senator Smith to abolish the Kentucky State Racing Commission ought not to pass. This bill is the only one introduced by any member relating to racing or race tracks.

PONS COLORS TO THE FORE.

Jacksonville Turfman Scores a Double at Moncreif—Sager Turns Tables on Pulka.

Jacksonville, Fla., February 18.—The colors of Francis J. Pons, the local turfman, were conspicuous at Moncreif this afternoon. The winners of the first two races came from his stable. Tallahassee capturing the two-year-old dash, while Tivoli proved an easy winner in the second race, which he won by three lengths from Miss Herbert. Track conditions were not of the best, owing to continued showers last night. Two of the first choices made good—Sager and John Griffin II. The last time that Sager and Pulka met the latter finished first, but the Schröder colt reversed the order of the finish this afternoon by leading his field all the way and winning easily from Collis Ormsby, which in turn beat Pulka seven lengths.

In the fourth race, the receding favorite, Royal Onyx, with Butwell as pilot, made a disappointing showing. It was no fault of the rider, however, that the horse did not win, for Butwell rode a determined race all the way. Royal Onyx simply lacked speed, and at the finish was beaten off a length by Tom McGrath for the small end of the purse after the latter had been almost left at the post.

Jockey Deavenport was suspended for a week by the judges for cutting across in front of his field with Earl of Richmond in the closing race.

Jockey Butwell announced that he would leave for New York on Sunday to join the stable that James Rowe is handling for James R. Keene.

P. T. Chinn, who has been racing one of the largest stables on the American turf during the past year, has announced his retirement from racing in this country. The big string that Mr. Chinn is racing here, which includes among others Jack Parker, Dixie Knight, Grandissimo, Lady Irma, Guy Fisher, The Golden Butterfly, John Carroll, Son and a number of good two-year-olds, will be sold by auction in the paddock at Moncreif on March 5. Mr. Chinn plans call for a trip to France, where he has been engaged to train for a prominent French owner. Jockey Vincent Powers will go abroad with Mr. Chinn to ride for the extensive establishment he will handle. Powers, however, will delay his departure until after the running of the Kentucky Derby, in which he has been engaged to ride Waldo. The pick of the Chinn two-year-olds are said to be St. Barthelemy, French Cook, Louis Monck, Frank Navin and Louis Des Cognets. It is understood that the Chinn venture was not a financial success.

C. H. Knebelkamp will not be permitted to start any more horses here pending an investigation into St. Barthelemy's alleged foul play.

The association has changed the claiming rule. The right of the owner of the third horse to a prior claim in selling races is abolished. This puts all owners on an equal footing in regard to privilege of claiming. The alteration in the rule was made with a view to preventing friendly claims.

Jockey Lang and the horses Great Jubilee and Otogo arrived from Tampa yesterday.

Homer Selby has purchased the mare Cuning of James McLaughlin.

KENNEDY HAS MARVELOUS ESCAPE.

El Paso, Tex., February 18.—J. R. Wainwright's jockey Norman Kennedy, had an almost miraculous escape from serious injury when he fell with the horse Chesapeake just after the finish of the last race at Terrazas Park today. Chesapeake jumped the list, which caused Kennedy to pull up abruptly, and Kennedy came down with a crash after turning several somersaults. It seemed as if everyone of the rear division of horses trampled on the prostrate rider in their onward rush. The local Mexican officials intended the horror of the scene when they ran over and covered the limp form with a cloth. This action caused all the spectators to believe that the boy had been killed outright. As a matter of fact Kennedy quickly recovered consciousness and, except for a few minor bruises, was none the worse for his fall.

The feature of the card, a five-furlong handicap, was probably decided by the start, which favored Medding Hannah, the winner, as against Ocean Queen, the runner-up. Medding Hannah and Countess were the only winners favorites on the card. The last named, making his first appearance at this meeting, was the medium of a big betting coup, with ramifications all over the United States. Countess had worked so well in private that almost any odds were cheerfully taken about him, even though he was opposed by some of the best horses of his age in local training. Topland, his supposedly most formidable opponent, was eliminated from contention when jockey Austin pulled him up at the start. The colored rider lodged a claim of foul against the winner, which the stewards properly disallowed. Countess ran the three-quarters in the fast time of 1:12, and may be a comer. Of the defeated favorites, Pops, Billy Taylor, Sophrony Brown and The Slicker all ran far below their best. Countess had worked so well in private that almost any odds were cheerfully taken about him, even though he was opposed by some of the best horses of his age in local training. Topland, his supposedly most formidable opponent, was eliminated from contention when jockey Austin pulled him up at the start. The colored rider lodged a claim of foul against the winner, which the stewards properly disallowed. Countess ran the three-quarters in the fast time of 1:12, and may be a comer. COUP GOES WRONG AT TAMPA.

Tampa, Fla., February 18.—Today's racing suffered on account of unfavorable weather and there was a reduced attendance. The sport was routine and devoid of much interest. It was a typical off-day all around. Favorites were again beaten in most of the races, the exceptions being Tamar and La Gloria.
The latter escaped defeat by a narrow margin.
The Carman Jockey, Fain, signalled his debut here by piloting Blanche Ring, his first mount, to victory. In the fifth race a betting coup was attempted on The Clown, and he was backed from 15 to 1 to 2. On recent showings such support was unwarranted. He fell shortly after rounding the first turn, chiefly because jockey Nicolai was unable to hold him together when he stumbled. The rider escaped unhurt.
Baleshed came out of retirement and, in a hard drive, beat Niantic. Baleshed's victory cost the books heavily. Tamar predeceased her opposition in the closing dash.

F. P. Wilson, owner of Rebel Queen and other horses, died last night in a local hospital after a lingering illness. His home was in Latonia, Ky., where his body will be shipped tomorrow for interment.

Advices from Jacksonville are that D. Hammond has not been officially granted a trainer's license. His horses will be trained by C. Patterson while here.
"Petie" Williams secured an option from W. A.
Kirwan on the horses Colonel Ashmeade and Bannock Bolt for $2,000 today. The horses will probably be transferred tomorrow.

Jockey T. K. Lynch was suspended for six days for disobedience at the post.

Since the betting end was taken in charge by Eugene Austin, acting for Tom Shaw, speculation has increased 50 per cent. Prices at times have ruled short, as they invariably do in a syndicate ring, but anyone desirous of placing a commission, big or little, has been able to get it on at the ruling price. There have been no refusals, no matter what the amount intended to be bet and no stampedes have followed the placing of a big commission. Since the Shaw forces have invaded this section they have not stored up much, as the public has been successful in handing on the winners. The betting, however, has not been confined to one or two horses in each race, and that has helped the layers considerably to offset losses on the winners. At present the ring is about even, counting operating expenses.

V. POWERS DESCRIBES JOCKEY'S TRAINING.

Vincent Powers, the New York boy who headed the list of American jockeys during 1908 and 1909, recently contributed the following signed article to a Jacksonville daily.

"After taking seven long years to climb the ladder of jockeyship fame, I am deluged with letters from ambitious boys who desire to become riders. It is impossible to answer the inquiries. My answer to them all may be summed in one word—'don't.' A jockey is born, not made. There is no method in the world to teach a boy to learn how to ride. If it is not in the blood, then one had best spend his time in other directions. For every boy who amounts to anything in the jockey line there are thousands who fall by the wayside.

"The training of a jockey is hard. It requires steady practice, long hours and constant work.
Many boys think that a jockey's career is one round of pleasure. Believe me, there is no play attached to the profession. The minute a boy begins to take matters easy he immediately starts on the tologgan and his career winds up quickly. To be a successful rider one has to keep his mind strictly on his work.
No matter how good he is, there is always room for improvement. And it is only by plodding that a lad can reach the stage where owners strive for his services.

"I have been more successful than the average boy who wishes to take up jockeying. True, the years when I headed the list of winning jockeys have been pleasant ones. But the days when I was preparing for the saddle were very hard. My training was no different than that of any other lad. No matter who you are or what you are, all boys go through the same school. When a younger attaches himself to a stable he has to roll up his sleeves and keep very busy.

"While the whole world is fast asleep the stable is wide awake. You are in the midst of your duties at two o'clock in the morning when the stable foreman comes around and hustles you out of your bed. You slip into your clothes and creep down stairs only half awake. You stumble out in the dark to the pump, where a few dashes of cold water chase away the remains of your sleep. The foreman then tells you to gallop such a horse for three-quarters. You hunt up the rigging, saddle your mount and start out on the track.

"The first morning you are ordered out to canter a horse fills you with fear. You wonder how you are going to avoid getting thrown or killed. Clinging to the lines, you give the horse his head. He starts on a slow gallop and you turn him towards the spot where you know the six-furlong post is. Suddenly out of the darkness you hear a voice shout, 'wait a second.' Then you know that the trainer is also on the job. He yells, 'go,' and you dash out through the darkness, wondering where you will land.

"The horse is wiser than you are. He dashes around the turns without a falter. As you pass the different poles they flash up like spirits. You are being carried down the homestretch as on a gale of wind when you hear another voice shout, 'pull up slowly.' You wrap the lines around your hands and gradually the horse slows down to a walk. By that time your heart is back in its proper place.

"No sooner have you dismounted than you are ordered to take out another charge. This goes on for an hour and a half. The fights through the air and the exercise have given you an appetite fit for a horse. There is still another wait.

The horses have to be blanketed, led around until they are fully cooled off and then put back into the stalls.

"Before you get your little legs under the table you spend many busy minutes carrying water and feed to the horses. When they are ready to eat you get at the breakfast. Many don't know that in a racing stable the horse comes first. Until he is comfortable there is nothing doing for the help.
The morning meal over, you trot back to the barn and help clean up the stalls.

"When this work is finished the sun is beginning to peep through the clouds in the east. The horses that are keyed up to run within a day or two are then saddled and given short dashes to keep the edge on their speed. By this time the track is alive with horses. Then a boy has to be careful. This is especially true in the early part of the season when the two-year-olds are being educated.

"These babies are fretful and wonder what all the excitement is about. You may be coming along at a fast gait when a youngster in front will suddenly bolt to the fence. That's when your brain has to work fast. The least mistake and you either bang into the youngster or perhaps hit the fence. That may mean a horse hurt for weeks or possibly injured so seriously that he is ruined.
And at the same time you may go over the fence or go to the ground with a broken arm or leg.

"The morning gallops over, you have a chance to rest until race time. Then the starters must be looked after. Just before the event you take the horse out and give him a breather. After the race you walk your charge around until he is cooled off.
Then comes the labor of fixing the horses up for the night. This means the old routine of carrying water, feed and other minor jobs.

"When this work is over you sit down to supper.
By the time this meal is over your bones ache and your eyelids persist in blinking. At nine o'clock the foreman comes around and orders you to bed.
Compare this life with that of the average boy and you must admit that it isn't a bed of roses. The inborn love for a horse is the only thing that will enable you to stand the steady and unending grind.
As I said at the start, if you were not born to be a jockey, but feel that you wish to learn —don't."

DAILY RACING FORM.

through the air and the exercise have given you an appetite fit for a horse. There is still another wait.
The horses have to be blanketed, led around until they are fully cooled off and then put back into the stalls.

"Before you get your little legs under the table you spend many busy minutes carrying water and feed to the horses. When they are ready to eat you get at the breakfast. Many don't know that in a racing stable the horse comes first. Until he is comfortable there is nothing doing for the help.
The morning meal over, you trot back to the barn
and help clean up the stalls.

"When this work is finished the sun is beginning to peep through the clouds in the east. The horses that are keyed up to run within a day or two are
then saddled and given short dashes to keep the edge
on their speed. By this time the track is alive with horses. Then a boy has to be careful. This is especially true in the early part of the season when the two-year-olds are being educated.

"These babies are fretful and wonder what all the excitement is about. You may be coming along at a fast gait when a youngster in front will suddenly bolt to the fence. That's when your brain
has to work fast. The least mistake and you
either bang into the youngster or perhaps hit
the fence. That may mean a horse hurt for weeks or possibly injured so seriously that he is ruined.
And at the same time you may go over the fence or
go to the ground with a broken arm or leg.

"The morning gallops over, you have a chance to rest until race time. Then the starters must be looked after. Just before the event you take the horse out and give him a breather. After the race you walk your charge around until he is cooled off.
Then comes the labor of fixing the horses up for the night. This means the old routine of carrying water, feed and other minor jobs.

"When this work is over you sit down to supper.
By the time this meal is over your bones ache and your eyelids persist in blinking. At nine o'clock the foreman comes around and orders you to bed.
Compare this life with that of the average boy and you must admit that it isn't a bed of roses. The inborn love for a horse is the only thing that will enable you to stand the steady and unending grind.
As I said at the start, if you were not born
—don't."
